Ron McFadyen

Ron McFadyen was inducted into the Sport Yukon Hall of Fame for his dedication to and promotion of amateur sport in the Yukon.

Ron came to the Yukon in 1969 to work for the CKRW radio station. In 1973 he joined another local station and pursued his career in radio. Ron's job as a broadcaster meant that he eventually had to "do" sports of his own. He took up running and started competing in the Klondike Road Relay.

In 1991, Ron won the Media Person of the Year Award from Cross-Country Canada in recognition of his tireless promotion of Yukon cross-country skiers. Ron also won Sport Yukon's Media Person of the Year Award eight times for his commitment to excellence in reporting Yukon sports. Ron has been known for his ability to get that shy little kid to say something on the air about the sport he or she loved.

Ron returned to CKRW in 2000. As part of the news team, Ron continues to provide listeners up to date news, sports, and community events.
